

Contents

Abbreviations	vii
Introduction	1
CHAPTER 1 1870s–1910s: Fledgling kindergartens in the colonial education landscape	7
The idea of kindergarten	11
Colonial responses to the Froebelian kindergarten	19
Free kindergarten movement	23
Creating a national kindergarten voice	28
Union established but not unified	34
The consequences of war	37
CHAPTER 2 1920s–1930s: Creating a national kindergarten voice	41
Collective action	52
The revival of the NZFKU	59
NZFKU refresher courses	62
Forging Pacific networks	65
“A National Disaster”	67
Travelling teachers	73
New times	75
CHAPTER 3 1940s–1950s: Brokering a new political partnership	83
Kindergarten at the New Zealand Centennial Exhibition	95
Reviewing preschool education	99
Union disunity	104
Government oversight of the plays of kindergarten	106
Training teachers and staffing issues	114
A flourishing ‘grown up’ movement	124
CHAPTER 4 1960s–1970s: Building the kindergarten flagship	129
Containing the popularity of kindergarten	145
Concerning Māori children at kindergarten	153
A new era in training teachers	160

In relation to playcentre	167
The idea of an early childhood convention	170
CHAPTER 5 1980s-1990s: Levelling the early childhood landscape	177
Kindergarten staffing matters	188
Quest for a 3-year qualification	194
Kindergarten and Before Five	197
Issues with bulk funding	203
Association pressures and angry teachers	209
A fragmented kindergarten movement	216
CHAPTER 6 2000s-2010s: Kindergarten in new political times	221
Kindergarten “pathways to the future”	232
Corporate competition	238
Kindergarten stocktakes	243
Diversifying kindergarten	247
Government agendas—kindergarten opportunities	255
Designing the Future—Kindergarten 2026	266
Kindergarten and ECE Statistics for 2015 (NZK)	270
Notes	271
Appendices	293
Index	304
The authors	324