

Contents

Introduction	9
SECTION ONE Systemic Issues	15
Chapter 1 Educational Decentralisation: The Growth of Community High Schools in the Solomon Islands	17
Introduction	17
The research investigation	19
The initial establishment of CHS	19
What factors influenced the establishment of CHS?	19
Consultation processes in establishing CHS	22
The ongoing operation of CHS	23
The availability and sufficiency of financial and other support for CHS	23
The administration of CHS	26
Issues and problems facing CHS	30
To what extent have CHS achieved their goals?	33
Conclusions	36
References	38
Chapter 2 The Educational and Career Aspirations Solomon Islands' Parents Hold for Their Children	41
Introduction	41
Secondary education in the Solomon Islands	42
Parents' perceptions of education	43
Parents' educational and career aspirations for their children	44
The research design	46
The findings	47
Parents' educational and career aspirations for their children	47
Parents' understanding of the Solomon Islands education system	52
Parents' views of vocational education	54
Some concluding thoughts	55
References	57

Chapter 3 Mi Wanfala Tisa Nao, Bata!:	61
Professional Learning in the Solomon Islands
Introduction	61
Context	62
Method	64
Findings	65
Sense of preparedness	65
Perceptions about their ITE	66
Induction experiences	69
Professional learning experiences	72
Discussion	74
Key findings	75
Initial teacher education experiences	75
Induction and professional learning experiences	76
Implications for educational researchers, policy makers, t eachers educators and school leaders	78
Conclusion	82
References	83
SECTION TWO School Leadership	85
Chapter 4 Effective School Leadership in the Solomon Islands	87
Introduction	87
The research process	88
The findings: Issues affecting school leadership	89
Systemic issues	89
Systemic policy issues	95
Sociocultural and community issues	96
Conclusion	97
References	100
Chapter 5 Highly Effective School Principals in the Solomon Islands	103
Introduction	103
Research design	105
Perceptions of highly effective principals in the Solomon Islands	106
Links between traditional Solomon Islands leadership and principals	106
Issues impeding effective principals	107
Discussion and significance of the findings	108
Professional relationships	109
Individual qualities of a leader	109
Managing, leading and becoming knowledgeable	110

Leading as role modelling	111
Issues that impede highly effective principalship	112
Conclusion	116
References	117

Chapter 6 Seen But Not Heard: The Educational Leadership Experiences of Women Leaders in Solomon Islands Secondary Schools 121

Introduction	121
Research methodology and process	123
Leadership experiences of the women in the study	124
Getting appointed	124
Feeling a lack of confidence	125
Balancing work and family	127
Violence against women	129
Discrimination	130
Lack of initial preparation, leadership training and ongoing professional learning	131
Lack of consultation in the decision-making process	132
What can be done to facilitate women's leadership in Solomon Islands secondary schools?	133
Allowing women to lead in their own way	133
Providing access to education and professional development for women	134
Acknowledging the influence of culture and gender on attitudes towards women leaders	136
Conclusion	138
References	140

SECTION THREE Wider Curriculum Issues 145

Chapter 7 Really Useful Knowledge 147

Introduction	147
Educational aims and outcomes in developing countries	148
The Solomon Islands' context: Theorising about really useful knowledge	150
Increased critical and political awareness	152
The creation of a skilled and competent paid workforce	153
Improved health	153
Investigating educators' views	154
Changes in Solomon Islands education since 2004	156
Curriculum Development Centre	157
Technology curriculum	157
Teacher education partnership	158
Untrained teachers	158
Emphasis on quality	159

Continued growth and support for CHS: Access, community ownership and curriculum	159
Co-ordination between education sectors	160
Conclusion	161
References	162

Chapter 8 The Impact of Effective Professional Development on Technical Education in the Solomon Islands 165

Introduction	165
Context	167
Methods	168
Findings	169
The preliminary inquiry	169
The intervention programme	172
Discussion	175
Conclusion	177
References	178

Chapter 9 Technology Teachers' Perceptions of Access to and Use of ICT Tools in Solomon Islands Schools 181

Introduction	181
Context	182
Research design	183
Participants' profiles	184
Data collection	184
Key findings	185
Limitations to access to and use of ICT in schools	185
Limited ICT infrastructure and resources in the schools and the impact on teacher use of ICT	186
Teachers' use of ICT tools	188
Low level of ICT knowledge and skills	189
The need for policies on ICT use in schools	190
Teachers' beliefs about the benefits of ICT	191
The need for professional development in ICT	192
Significance of the findings	193
Teachers' access to ICT	193
Teachers' use of ICT tools	194
Teachers' level of ICT knowledge and skill	195
The development of policies and guidelines for ICT use in schools	196
Future challenges	197
Conclusion	199
References	200

Chapter 10 Attitudes to Inclusive and Special Education in the Solomon Islands	203
Introduction	203
The evolution of inclusive education	205
Background to this study	207
Perceptions of special and inclusive education among teacher education students and teacher educators	208
Issues arising from the findings	211
A possible way forward	213
References	216