Contents

Foreword vii
Acknowledgements ix
Executive summary x

Chapter 1: Introduction
- What is teaching as inquiry? 1
- The importance of addressing the needs of priority learners 9
- The importance of school leadership 12
- Secondary Student Achievement project 15

Chapter 2: Developing the TAI process
- Identifying students’ needs 19
- Being intentional by focusing on four to five students 21
- Focusing on pedagogical changes 24
- Narratives as support for inquiry 26
- Feedback loops for evaluating TAI 28
- Summary 30

Chapter 3: Case studies
- Characteristics of the case study schools 32
- Sorting out what makes a difference 34
- School A 36
- School B 49
- School C 62
- Summary 77

Chapter 4: Influences on pedagogical development
- The role of the facilitators 80
- Being willing to make changes, and being flexible 84
- Developing and using feedback loops 86
- Keeping perspective 86
- Summary 89

Chapter 5: Developing a learning community
- Supporting the team 91
- Incremental versus large-scale change 93
- Changes related to literacy 95
- Changes to assessment practices 96
- Changes related to culturally responsive teaching 97
- Integrating changes with existing initiatives in a community of learning 100
- Summary 102
Chapter 6: Key findings

- Key enablers for priority learners 105
- Key enablers for teachers and middle learners 106
- Key enablers for professional learning communities 109
- Summary 114

Chapter 7: Recommendations for enhancing the implementation of TAI

1. What have we learned from this project? 116
2. Given the benefits of TAI, what are the next steps for enhancing actions so that TAI is more sustainable? 123
3. How can leaders support effective continued professional learning? 124
4. How can we use TAI more effectively to address equity issues? 127

Conclusion 127

References 129

Biographical information 133

Index 134